MYSTERY VEILS EDITOR'S DEATH

Former Husband of Madame Caillaux Found Dead

PARIS, July 17.—Coming as it does so closely after the granting of amnesty to Joseph Caillaux, mysterious death of Leo Claret, distinguished French journalist and friend of the late premier, has aroused rumors of scandal and caused official investigation to be started.

Claret was formerly the husband of Madame Caillaux. His body, horribly mutilated, apparently by a train, was found by a track worker near the railroad at Rennes.

Accident Questioned

Preliminary investigation has failed to reveal conclusive evidence as to whether death was accidental. It is apparently established that Claret left Paris with but 15 francs in his pocket. His coat button, was discovered a mile from where the body lay.

Friends recall frequent disputes between the journalist and the second Madame Claret, who he married after the present Madame Caillaux became the wife of the experimenter.

Jury at Kountze Convicts, Gives Him Freedom

ROBINSON DAZED

Had Hoped for Acquittal in Verdict

By R. O. ZOLLINGER

KOUNTZE, Texas, July 17.—Bob Robinson, 23-year-old Houston lad, was found guilty of manslaughter by the jury at 9 o'clock this morning after being out 18 hours and 15 minutes. The jury recommended a five year suspended sentence for Robinson, who was tried for the slaying of Mrs. Mollie Dudley, 22-year-old divorcee, in Houston, January 6.

When announcement came that the jury had reached an agreement Robinson, his body tense, took his seat. The jury filed in.

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of manslaughter and recommend a five-year suspended sentence," the foreman read.

Robinson stood dazed. He was free. His fight for life had ended. But the verdict was not what he had hoped. He hoped for acquittal.

Judge Combs talked to Robinson. "The eyes of Texas are upon you," he said. Don't fall that faith."

Pretty Lavonia Harris, young Robinson's sweetheart, broken into tears when the verdict was returned. "I am so happy," she cried. Court attaches and relatives crowded around the freed boy and shook his hand. Townspeople who had waited through the long night, many fighting mosquitoes on the court-house lawn, offered congratulations. Everybody seemed to be glad.

"I am going to continue my medical education," Robinson declared. "I am going to have to work my way."

Minimum Penalty Given Port Arthur Man

DE BARGE TRIAL FRIDAY

Both Accused in Holdup of Car on Beach Road

By News Staff Correspondent

BEAUMONT, Texas, July 17.—Five years in the penitentiary was the sentence given Howard Crump of Port Arthur by a jury in the 60th district court on a charge of highway robbery. Crump was given the minimum penalty, maximum being death.

Because jurors did not want to remain in the court house overnight, they effected a compromise after deliberating five hours. Two jurors were said to have been in favor of acquitting Crump, while another wanted to sentence the Port Arthur man for 50 years.

Two Other Charges

"They didn't do me right," Crump said to Jailer E. E. King as he was being led from the courtroom. Crump faces two other charges together with Lee DeBarge, all three counts originating out of an alleged highway robbery about midnight, February 20, on the West Port Arthur road.

DeBarge's case goes to trial Friday morning. The other two cases, each of the defendants facing trial separately, will be taken up at the next term of court. It was said that Crump and DeBarge will probably plead guilty in the other two cases, thus possibly escaping with lighter sentences.

Crump, a service car driver, was alleged to have been in league with DeBarge, who held up Crump's car with three passengers when it approached a draw-bridge across Taylor's bayou. Crump had been called to bring in E. C. Hall, W. M. Henderson and N. Lohary, from a draw-bridge.

Day Before Yesterday

Victims of the alleged holdup testified regarding Crump's actions as the car approached the draw-bridge and said Crump raced his motor as a signal to DeBarge, who was recognized by the victims. DeBarge, it was testified, drew a gun on the four men and went through their clothes. Crump was robbed of $31.40, he said.

The three men brought in from the boat testified that Crump refused to hurry in bringing them to town after the robbery, and let them out of the car several blocks from the police station, allowing them to walk the remainder of the way. Crump advised the trio that if he had his way, he would not say anything about the robbery to police, it was testified.

Crump and DeBarge were both arrested by police shortly after the robbery on information furnished by the robbed men. They were found together when caught.

MAJOR SLAIN BY MEN HE HELPED

Alleged Confession of Highwaymen Made Public

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 17.—Major Samuel H. McLeary, an aviator hero of the world war, was killed by highwaymen whom he befriended, according to an alleged confession made public by police. The daring officer, missing for two weeks, was shot down alongside a lonely stretch of road after he had been disarmed by two men whom he gave a ride in his automobile while en route from Raleigh to Charleston, S. C., the confession said.

New Search Made.
Several parties set out at dawn in a new and vigorous effort to find the body of the missing major and apprehend one of two men involved in the alleged confession and still at large. The confession was made public after army officers, department of justice agents and county authorities had questioned Mortimer H. King of Canton, an alleged army deserter, for two days.

King, came and nonchalant, stoutly denied any knowledge of the crime when first questioned, after an array with the label and laundry mark the same as on Major McLeary's clothing was found in his house; King wavered in his story and finally broke down and cried out "that's his shirt, we did it."

Two Men Identified
According to King's confession, he and a companion killed Major McLeary, stripped the body of valuables and carried it in the brush near Charnock, S. C.

After they had accepted a ride in the officer's automobile, they compelled him to stop, forced him out of the car and then shot him down as he stood alongside the road. The car was driven to Canton but after an unsuccessful attempt to cross the mountains, the two men returned toward Asheville and the automobile accidentally overturned in a ditch.

Discovery of the abandoned automobile and blood stained cap of Major McLeary in a thicket near Canton led officers to conduct a vigorous search for the major's body, resulting in the arrest of King.

SPREAD REPORT TO SAVE BOYS
Sympathy Sought for Loeb, Leopold, Claim.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Attorneys engaged by the millionaire Leopold and Loeb families in an effort to save their sons from the gallows, "are spreading vicious propaganda" which is intended to show the boys innocent, representatives of the state charged today.

The defense, according to Dr. William O. Krohn, state's alienist, is attempting to paint the careers of young Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb "as blacker than they really are so as to make the world believe the murderers are insane."

Reports circulated that Leopold and Loeb had plotted to murder Loeb's younger brother before they changed their plans and killed 16-year-old Robert Franks instead, were branded as "vicious lies" by Dr. Krohn.

The death of a former husband, Charles McLaughlin and the serious illness of another, will not be investigated, Water said, in view of the "certainty of conviction in the present case."

Machline Gunner W. E. Madden of the Canadian government cruiser Gurevichy won several medals for his accurate aim against the Germans. Now he is keeping up his record with sea lions. The province of British Columbia has declared war on the lions because of their alleged destruction of salmon. Madden, since his assignment to the Gurevichy, has shot 1,000 of the beasts. The slaughter of the lions has brought a vigorous protest from lovers of wild animals.

The jurisdictions of the Mexican consular service to be in New Orleans cover seven states and the West Indies, all under control of the consular offices in New Orleans, where Juan Marshall is the acting consul general.

FORD, STUDEBAKER IN COLLISION ON PROCTER

Collision of a Ford and a Studebaker, both driven by women, resulted in the former having a rear wheel splintered and a crash which attracted a large crowd to the scene about 10 last night at Shreveport and Procter intersections.

Motorcycle Officer Joe Gibson and Police Captain Fox arrived on the scene soon after the crash but neither of parties in the two cars desired to file complaints. No one was hurt, as far as could be learned.

Floods Peril Cities as Small Dykes Break

PEKIN, July 17.—The peril of floods in western China continues grave. Thus far, the city of Tien Tsin has been spared. Two smaller dykes broke today, flooding districts east and west of the city, but these dykes protecting Tien Tsin have held. Thousands of soldiers and coolies are toiling in relays repairing small leaks.

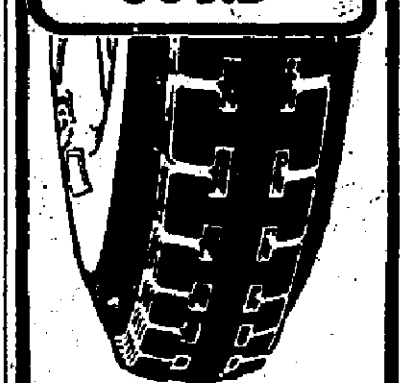

Five villages west of Tien Tsin were inundated and destroyed, but the railroad running through the rice lands withstood the waters.

FOOD FOR THE FARMER THROUGH PARTY PLATFORMS

This year all the practical politicians and all the platform makers are deeply interested in farm relief measures. The republican platform makers made this declaration:

"The republican party pledges itself to the development and enactment of measures which will place the agricultural interests of America on a basis of economic equality with other industries to assure its prosperity and success. We favor adequate tariff protection to such of our agricultural products as are threatened by competition. We favor, without putting the government into business, the establishment of a federal system of organization for cooperative marketing of food products."

This is the foreword of the long plank made by the democratic platform makers:

"During the four years of republican government the economic condition of the American farmer has changed from comfort to bankruptcy with all its attendant miseries."

Now what are the chief causes of alleged condition of the American farmer from the democratic viewpoint? The republican policy of a prohibitive tariff, the republican policy of high transportation rate and the republican policy of isolation in international affairs. Now how are the democrats going about it to drag the American farmer from bankruptcy to comfort? They pledge themselves to adopt an international policy of co-operation, to readjust the tariff, to readjust and lower rail and water rates, to bring about the early completion of internal waterway systems for transportation, to develop our water powers for cheaper fertilizer for use on the farm, to stimulate by every proper governmental activity the progress of the cooperative marketing movement, and to secure for the farmer credits suitable for his needs.

If there is a vast surplus of wheat this year, how will it be possible for the platform makers to advance the price of wheat to $1.50 a bushel? If there should be a large surplus of American cotton grown how will it be possible for them to keep the price of cotton at thirty cents a pound?

FENCE GUARDS AT "S" CROSSING

The placing of fence guards at the dangerous 'S' crossing just below Nederland on the paved highway may prove good insurance to some motorists.

This crossing has been one of the most dangerous between here and Beaumont and many a wreck has occurred there in the past few years. Autoists, unacquainted with the road have gone into the ditch many times just because the turn was not properly marked and perhaps the drivers were speeding as well.

The fence parallels the road on either side of the tracks and because it is painted white becomes visible even at night for quite a distance.

WHY THIS LETHARGY?

A very little interest is being taken in Port Arthur in the coming county election, according to political seers who have been watching the trend of events here for years.

Port Arthur has several men in the race and we ought to take more interest than we do. Surely we are entitled to representation in the Jefferson county court house. We never have had adequate representation in the past and won't in the future unless more interest is taken. The News pointed out this fact several months ago. There is still time to get busy and revive interest. If we don't do it now there will be little use in kicking afterwards.

BROTHER IN BLACK

America has a national association for the advancement of colored people. Its leaders are working for the passage of the Dyer anti-lynching bill. They are opposed to all "mob and riotous assemblies." They are for the most part republicans.

There is another side of it. In the black district of Chicago the democrats have named a negro against Congressman Martin B. Madden, republican. They hope to elect him in November.

Think of a black democrat defeating a white republican at the polls in the great city of Chicago! There is something new under the sun.

Rhode Island mill owners are going south. This applies to the woolen as well as the cotton industry. There is a new civilization in the making "away down south."

To dance the fox-trot: Encircle the girl with your right arm and place your hand, palm up, on her right shoulder, counting down the top down. Don't fail to make the count as you will find that it will amuse her greatly. Then grasp her right hand in your left, fastening the little fingers with a half-hitch. You will now find her facing you with her face buried in your shirt front. When all is ready, step out and bear in mind that every little movement helps.

To waltz: The grip is similarly applied as to that in the fox-trot. If the girl is at all beautiful, the time is twenty-two heart beats to the second. It is customary to lead off with the left foot and, if the girl had form in show, if you lead off with both. Glide but never slip.

To sit out the dance: All that is needed is a girl and a car, which may be selected at the door. Though you may lose your heart, do not lose your head. Your dress shirt will aid you to put up a stiff front.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU HELD BONDS IN THIS COMPANY

ANY MOTORS CO. BANKRUPT PLANT to be sold at auction SATURDAY

If a man owns bonds of a company which goes into receivership, it is usually wise to join the bondholders' protective committee.

If a bondholders' protective committee representing 50 per cent of the bonds outstanding buys in the property, it may turn over its bonds for 50 per cent of the payment. The other ten per cent must be paid in cash, which goes to the bondholders outside of the committee.

It is probable that the property was sold for 1-3 to 1-2 of the face value of the bonds, since it was a forced sale. Consequently, the bondholder outside the committee would receive from 1-3 to 1-2 of the face value of his bond, and he would be through.

The bondholder within the committee would turn over his bond at from 1-3 to 1-2 its face value, but he would own the property, and by successful operation, might eventually be able to receive his full investment and more.

Consequently the man who stays out of such a committee, hoping to save a relatively small amount, usually gets the worst of it.

What a Woman Can Do
In these days of emancipation, women are dabbling about at all sorts of things.

It is natural also that many of the women should be a little dazed with their freedom, and puzzled at the many doors open to them.

It is natural also that some of them should make mistakes, the business of making mistakes being the one in which we are all more or less adept.

And the principal mistake that they make is the very primary one of mistaking the peculiar kind of activity in which they are endowed by Nature to excel and in which no mere man can cope with them.

There is such a thing as sex in ideas. There is such a thing as femininity of spirit. And it is not a thing to be ashamed of nor to be regarded as in any wise second-rate.

There are three things a woman can do better than any man can do them: three things so vital that the world's pulse would stop and the world's spirit would drop without them.

These three things are Love, Management and Appreciation.

In the first place the world's most precious treasure, the immediate jewel of its soul, the last possession with which it would willingly part is Love.

It is no extravagance to say that Love belongs to her, and that without

The LAND OF FOGGOTTEN MEN

by Edison Marshall

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Peter Newhall, Augusta, Ga., flew to Alaska, after being told by Ivan, a Russian, that he had been drowned. Peter, a young man, had been following a quarrel, Ishmael, a Russian, who had been drowned. Peter, a young man, had been following a quarrel, Ishmael, a Russian, who had been drowned. Peter, a young man, had been following a quarrel, Ishmael, a Russian, who had been drowned.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Dorothy was lying all she had on the altar of vanity. She might have been able to restrain Peter's hand drinking if she had tried, if she had shown real interest. He never drank when he was alone with her—he did not even care for a cocktail before dinner—and at first he had not drunk dangerously to excess even with his men friends. This had only come after they had begun to fall away from each other, after Ivan—no one else—had come between.

She knew perfectly that there was no happiness in drinking upon these things. The sensible course for her was to follow Ivan's advice, marry him, let him guide her steps down the shining path he promised, and play the gay game more desperately than ever. In the end this would be her destiny: she sensed it as certain.

It was this that persuaded her to the amazing course that she unfolded to Ivan one night in late July, and which at first he refused to credit, nothing less than an expedition into Western Alaska with the purpose of finding her husband's lost and neglected grave and transferring his remains to the dignified resting place in the old City Cemetery, and the Newhall family vault.

Ivan's attitude was at first uncompromising opposition. "Dorothy, that's ridiculous," he told her. "I won't hear of it! A long, dangerous trip for nothing."

She turned to him in amazement, vaguely offended rather than pleased at his solicitude for her. The look of his face baffled her; the idea had evidently moved him much more than formally that the expedition seemed to justify. He not only looked intent and determined, but almost desperate; there was a quick flash of a startled light in his eyes that she had never seen before.

She was not pleased at this proprietary air, and she showed it.

He was instantly that nothing was to be gained by violent opposition. His brilliant smile broke like the sunlight. "Let's talk this matter over sensibly," he urged. "I can imagine how you feel—that you don't like to think of your poor remains lying out there on that lonely, rocky, desolate beach. But Dorothy, remember me to your father—his father—those distinguished men that headed the line. Ivan, there is something primitive in me in this regard; I want my own near me, where I can look after him, and do what I can for his memory. It's human instinct, Peter; and I hope it doesn't grate on your sensibilities. It's a real need for me, and I have to do it. Peter's crime against himself was to wipe out his memory; there is no reason why he should live with the other Newhalls. It is his right. You ask why I don't have someone tend to it for me. Well, there are a good many reasons. The first is that it is my place and my right. In the second, I don't want degrading hands at work at that grave—rough, wicked men who will say anything, do anything. At first I was willing to have it done that way, and three months ago I wrote to the postmaster at Fair Pass, and had him procure men and boats and go and procure the bodies. I've just learned that after great cost and many delays they have returned without finding the grave. They explained that they couldn't get hold of any of the ship's crew that had buried it, and they say that the country is simply immense."

"And they're right in that," Ivan observed.

her this so great lie of the gods would fall upon every hearthstone. The second of her hearthstones is Management.

Men think she manages, but he does not. It is her strength as the horse has strength, but the woman has the bridge.

It is a man's duty to work, to create and to produce. In these a woman cannot cope with him. But he cannot preserve the result of his work, and his production and creation become wastage without the woman's management.

The third business of woman is the Management. Application to the Head of Life. It is the Vitamins of the spirit.

Appreciation does not judge; it does not condemn; it does not punish. It understands.

Attractive Frocks For Morning Wear Featuring Many Lovely Light Shades

MORNING frocks hold an especial appeal to Port Arthur women who prefer to spend the morning hours about her home in a sweet little gingham house dress instead of a dilapidated frock with decollete lines and minus portions of its headwork. Any woman would look attractive in the early morning cleaning up the results of last night's bridge party in a pretty gingham dress. One can choose many lovely light colors for morning wear at home which cannot be worn discriminately on the streets.

Pre-arranged linens, gingham, flowered cottons, volles and cotton crepes are all materials suitable for the house frock, the newest of which are made on dress lines rather than apron lines. Many women make their house-dresses, using a simple straight-lined pattern which requires but two side-seams. Necklines are cut round and sleeves are short and a sash belt is placed at a low waist-line. Pockets may be added on the sides and white organdy or linen collars tend to take away the apron appearance.

It is nice to have at least four of these dresses, choosing each dress of a different shade. Yellow and white checked gingham is always pretty about the house and gets away from the popular pink or blue color-scheme which most women seem to prefer. Brown and white checked gingham is also neat in appearance and holds its color well in laundering. The house-dress of today is not supposed to look like a house-dress. It has the fit and lines of the street frock. One can run to the corner grocery without creating any excitement whatever in the modern working frock.

The woman who does not heavy work will find volles in pastel shades lovely for house-wear, as they are cool and launder well. Cotton crepe is also a good material, and it is easily ironed, or may be worn without ironing.

Little aprons of cretonne may be worn over the house-frock of plain colored material. The rubberized aprons which come in colors are also lovely for housework. One may match the apron with the frock, if one desires.

ONE often wonders how many different styles will be evolved during the summer months. A new sports coat of simple make was seen recently. It was made of cretonne and worn over a white silk shirt and white silk blouse. There were no sleeves in the colorful jacket and it was bound about the edges in plain color. The jacket opened up the front with lapels as a neck finish.

Nothing could be more suitable for a traveling dress than a smart cape-back dress with long sleeves. The cape-dress combination will be found cooler than the suit for summer travel and, at the same time, has the tailored appearance demanded for travel. Small checked materials are admirable for traveling purposes as they do not show the dust as do plain dark colors.

Sweaters are passe, and in their place are sweater-blouses, which are made of cotton or silk material and fashioned on the slip-on sweater lines. These are much cooler than wool sweaters, launder well and fit into the niche left vacant by the ousted sweater.

With the summery frock are carried little flowered taffeta handbags with the design of the flowers outlined in steel beads. These are rather about the top with a narrow grograine ribbon. For white frocks the white ribbon about the wrist seems quite appropriate.

Large straw hats of inexpensive type may be made very lovely by facing them with flowered chiffon on the under brim.

AN EXTENSIVE SERIES OF INTERESTING LECTURES DELIVERED IN PRIVATE LECTURES ROOMS 122-123

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN FRESCOTT
I do wish I were not the liaison officer between you and Paula Perrier. I told her yesterday that if she could just realize that little Jack was dead to her, it would be much better for all concerned. I never saw anyone in all my life that insisted upon keeping the camp fire burning as much as she.

What do you think she has gotten into her quixotic brain now? As soon as I arrived I found a note asking me to come directly to her. (By the way, she has a very gorgeous suite at the Plaza. These moving picture queens have money to spend nowadays, and the real ones, and I believe the gladiators they wear are even more stable than the crowns which are placed on the heads of continental royalty.)

"I am so glad to see you, Sydney," she said. "I want to hear all about everything. You know I made a trip across between pictures purposely to find out if Jack is really flitting with Mrs. Abington. You know I met her at the reception given for me in Albany."

"I didn't like her neither did she like me, and I'm not going to have Jack Prescott break the heart of that nice wife of his, just for some red-headed vamp."

That's interesting, isn't it, Jack? Thoroughly modern, I should say. The mother of a man's illegitimate child takes up the cudgel for his wife. You're a lucky devil, Jack, and always were. Of course you're very anxious to know how just what Paula went for me. Well, here it is: "I'm making much more money than I can possibly spend," she said. "I don't think, Sydney, that I shall ever marry—at least not for many years. I want you to arrange some way in which I can give to John Alden Prescott Junior a part of my weekly salary, as arrange some way that it can be invested for him."

I myself think this is rather a good thing, both for Paula Perrier and for little Jack. In some way it will satisfy her maternal responsibility, and, of course, it will give Jack enough money by the time he grows up to make him independent for life. She's very anxious to find out what you think of the scheme. She wants to know if it can be done without telling Leslie. She seems to feel as though Leslie would refuse the money.

Lemon Juice Whitens Skin
The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orcead White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Females stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and coral white complexion to also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleaser. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

ADVOCATES OF WILSON AIDING

Line Up Behind Nominee of Democrats

NEW YORK, July 17.—Headquarters of John W. Davis are taking on the atmosphere of Woodrow Wilson campaign days.

Bliss on the roster of those whose advice he is seeking in mapping his campaign and writing his keynote speech of acceptance are men who worked in the ran of Wilson's fights for the White House in 1912 and 1916. There is Frank Polk, a close adviser of the late ex-president and under secretary of state in the second Wilson administration; there is Colonel E. M. House, for years an intimate confidant, friend and counselor of the war president; there is Gordon Auchincloss, son-in-law of Colonel House. Davis is to spend the next 10 days at the summer home of Charles Dana Tibbetts, one of the closest friends of Colonel House.

Original Apostles

Norman Davis, who up to the time of Wilson's death, was one of his closest friends, is in constant touch with the democratic nominee.

Henry Morgenthau, one of the original apostles of the Wilson campaign in 1912 is a Davis adviser. Daniel Rober, head of the internal revenue bureau during the Wilson administration and for years a political adviser of Wilson, is a leader now in the Davis campaign conferences.

There appears little doubt that these men will have a telling effect upon Davis' enunciation of his governmental principles.

AT THE CAMEO
Tongues of slander reduce a rich young man to poverty. A girl's honesty and loyalty to her love result in the doors of the rich being locked against her. How both overcome the obstacles placed in their way makes an entertaining story in "The Spitfire" now showing at the Cameo theatre.

Betty Blythe plays Jean Bronson, the society girl who becomes a stage dancer, and Elliott Dexter is seen as the hero, Douglas Kenyon.

"A good movie plot."—Photoplay Magazine for July.

THE NAME IS WOMAN
"The Name Is Woman" is the dramatic cost of the year. The story, of course, has a lot to do with it. It concerns the eternal conflict of men over a beautiful woman. An old smuggler in the Spanish Pyrenees has a young wife who is sought by several other men. A young soldier is sent from the garrison to make love to her and thus learn enough about the smuggler to effect his capture. The soldier and the wife fall in love and the struggle is on. With this as a starting point, the picture works up to great dramatic climaxes with the final solution coming only after the tragedy.

Barbara La Marr is seen as the young wife; and Ramon Navarro takes the role of the young soldier.

"A tragedy told simply and effectively with some beautiful sets and photography." Barbara La Marr excellent.—Photoplay Magazine for August.

THREE FORGOTTEN STARS MEET AGAIN

FLORENCE TURNER, MAURICE COSTELLO AND LILLIAN WALKER—THREE WHO MADE MOTION PICTURE HISTORY—MEET AGAIN AFTER MANY YEARS.

Scratch your memory and certain names will loom large:

Florence Turner, the "Vitagraph Girl"; Maurice Costello, who turned millions of hearts upside down; Flora Finch, the laugh-provoking partner of John Bunny; Lillian Walker, with her dimples and long, golden braid; Mary Fuller and Helen Holmes—a long parade of them march down memory lane.

Three of them met at tea the other day and talked of fame, the flickle jade.

Florence Turner is just back from England, where she came to know actual privation.

In 1913, at the height of her popularity, she left America after organizing her own company. The war came. Her fortune was wiped out.

"Do you expect to return to the films?"

Lillian Walker, lanned to a deep bronze from life on a little New York farm, smiled wistfully and revealed the dimples that once had brought her fame.

"If they will let me," she said, "I too, think the public would welcome me. I still get piles of fan letters asking where I am—and that helps a lot. It shows one is not forgotten."

Maurice Costello, his hair well silvered, years of tense emotional work seeming to have told upon his nerves, smiled reminiscently.

"I don't kid myself. I'm still good for heavies and characters, but I'd be a big boob to think I could do the films."

"DALEY DOPE" MEETING COMPETITION

Not meeting it—but beating it.

We have noticed the "Barnum and Bailey style advertisements" of these "so-called bargains" in Hosiery and have decided to offer you our Ladies' high-class "Iron Clad" Silk Hosiery in firsts (we do not buy "job-lots, seconds, nor distress merchandise") at the following prices: 100c, $1.49, $1.98, $2.23, $2.49 and $2.08, and in making you these goods at these prices, we are sure you can't match the value for the price. "Iron Clad" have no superior. Cooper, Wells and Co., of St. Joseph, Michigan, have been making "Iron Clad" Hosiery since 1878—46 years of continuous making of one product. Had their merchandise not proved good, this firm would not be making Hosiery today, and again they are distributing "Iron Clad" direct to more than 15,000 retailers in the U. S. A. and are having a hard time making their Hosiery fast enough to supply their retailers, so they have no warehouse, filled with decaying Hosiery, consequently they have no "distress stock" to offer. They do not sell to jobbers, brokers, nor wholesalers, and the savings from their direct to retailer distribution is put into the goods; hence, you get a better product for the same money. You should steer clear of "job lots, seconds and distress" merchandise. If you don't you will have the "distress" yourself soon after buying it. Why not demand a guarantee on these so-called bargains. We guarantee "Iron Clad" Hosiery to be free from all imperfections and defects and to give you satisfactory service for the price paid. This guarantee is on all "Iron Clad" Hosiery except "Chiffon," which is guaranteed free from defects and imperfections at the time of purchase, but not on wear.

Don't buy just stockings. Come here and get "Iron Clad" Hosiery at the same price. Before you buy, give us a try.

"Good morning, Mrs. Yellowbill!" said Nick and Nancy.

"Good morning, Mister Zip!" said Mrs. Yellowbill. She was sitting in her chair, looking through the turnstile of Happy Go Lucky Park, followed by her six children.

"Good morning, Mrs. Yellowbill!" nodded the little girl in a friendly way. Mister Zip was in a very good humor because business was so good.

"Good morning, Mrs. Yellowbill!" said Nick and Nancy as the duck lady and her family approached the lemonade, lollipop, ice cream cone stand.

"Good morning!" quacked Mrs. Yellowbill pleasantly. "What kind of lollipops do you have today?"

"Crab, watermelon, cornmeal and lettuce," said Nick, picking out the flavors that he thought the duck children would like.

"Crab! I want a crab lollipop," quacked Daisy Duck. "I just love crab flavoring."

"Do you have any lollipops flavored with frogs?" asked Dolly Duck. "I think frog flavoring is better than vanilla or peppermint or anything."

"What's that?" boomed a big voice nearby. "Who is it that likes frog flavoring, I'd like to know?"

And there stood big green Granddaddy Frog looking over his glasses as cross as two sticks.

"We were just saying," remarked Mrs. Yellowbill loudly, as she waddled up close to Granddaddy, "that we all liked frog flavoring very, very much indeed." And as she finished speaking, she didn't close her mouth at all but held it open so wide that Granddaddy didn't need his glasses to see half way down her throat.

"I-I heard you the first time," said Granddaddy hastily backing away to the place where his grandsons were waiting for him in the weeds. "Come, boys, we'll go and chut-the-chutes. I can't stand here all day talking about lollipops."

"Wh—what was he saying about shooting?" asked Mrs. Yellowbill, nervously. "Did I hear him say that he was going to shoot something?"

"He's just going to chut-the-chutes," said Nick. "It's a sort of roller coaster that slides you off into the water and you get all splashed. I think that you and the children would like it."

"Why, I believe we would," said Mrs. Yellowbill. "Hurry, children, pick out your lollipops and we'll be going. Whatever it means to chut-the-chutes I don't know, but if it is something that splashes you, I'm sure we shall like it."

She paid for the lollipops and ducked her head into her pocket to get her change, and away they all went, wiggling, their tails and all talking at once, and by and by they came to the place where a big sign said "Chut-the-chutes. 5 cents a slide!"

"You get six tickets for a quarter," said Nick, who had followed along to see that the duck lady didn't get lost.

"Make it seven and I'll come," said Mrs. Yellowbill.

"All right," said Nick. (To Be Continued)

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

A STRANGE KNIGHT SAVES THE QUEEN

After returning from his search for the Holy Grail, Sir Launcelot renewed his love for Queen Guenevere. Many happy hours they spent together. Then the Queen became jealous without good cause. She told Launcelot: "Go from me, untrue knight; I never want to see you more!"

Launcelot's heart was too heavy to answer. He bade goodbye to his dear friend, Sir Bors, and went some distance away to live with a hermit. Guenevere was a woman who lost her temper in a hurry. She was often sorry for it afterwards. Soon after Launcelot left, she began to miss him sorely, but she did not want anyone to know. So she began to prepare for a grand party. Twenty-four knights were invited.

One of the knights was called Sir Pined. He was angry toward Sir Gawaine and thought he would put him out of the way.

To do the cruel deed, Pined put poison inside an apple which he thought Gawaine would eat. Instead, the apple was eaten by Sir Patrice, who died from the effects.

Patrice's cousin, Sir Mador, thought the queen had put the poison in the apple. He stood up and shouted that Guenevere had slain his cousin. The other knights jumped up from their seats and waited to see what would happen.

King Arthur heard the noise and came in to see what was the trouble. When he heard, his heart was sore. "I demand justice," cried Sir Mador. "You must be a fair and right-minded king."

"Yes," said Arthur, "that I must. Unless some man offer in 15 days to do battle for the queen against you, she must burn at the stake!"

The queen shrank at these terrible words.

"Woe is me," she cried. Oh, if Sir Launcelot were only here.

Well might the queen be unhappy, for there was not a knight there who believed her innocent. No one offered to take her side. Then Guenevere called Sir Bors to her and said: "I ask you for the love you bear Sir Launcelot to fight for me here."

"If you ask it in the name of his love," replied Bors, "I cannot refuse you. Unless better knight comes than I, you shall have me as a defender."

Day after day passed, but no "better knight" arrived.

At last came the fateful time. Arthur and his knights gathered beside a field. Guenevere looked at Sir Bors and shuddered. If he lost the fight, she knew she would have to die.

"Hurry up, Sir Bors," cried Sir Mador sharply. "Let us have done with this!"

Sir Bors shifted uneasily. He seemed to be waiting for something to happen. Suddenly all eyes were turned across the field. There, galloping toward them at full speed, was a knight bearing a strange shield. Coming before the king he said he wanted to fight for the honor of the queen, who was unjustly accused. Sir Bors gave place to the newcomer.

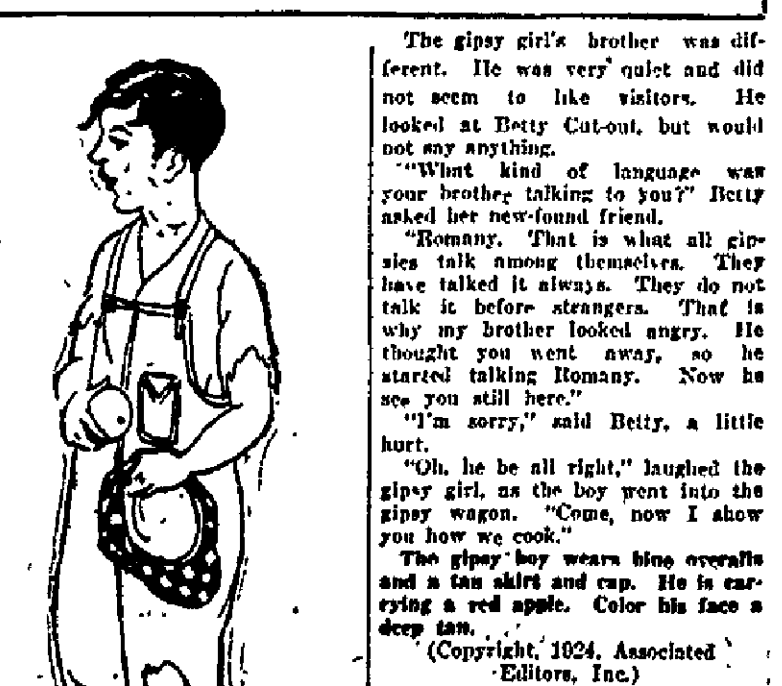

Sir Mador and the strange knight clasped together. Mador was knocked to earth. The other knight towered over him, saying: "I will spare your life only on condition that you shall never again utter false word against the queen."

"I promise," said Sir Mador.

Then the strange knight took off his helmet. It was Sir Launcelot! (Copyright, the John F. Dille Co., Chicago.)

WHAT'S WRONG WITH VOTERS?

Cynicism of Popular Interest in Election Seen

 to shed in the interest of the tax payers. Yet this same cynicism is capable of contradiction because it doesn't include a complete new slate. There are some old faces in the political album that apparently look good to those few citizens who will talk about it. There is no "he kept us out of war" slogan to popularize their campaigns. But there are several who have the rallying cry, "he kept us out of debt."

Wanted: A Political Surgeon
 So the condition which to all intents and purposes exists in Jefferson county is a paradoxical one. It is crippled. Its legs are broken and it hobbles along on crutches. Heroic measures are needed to revivify the wreck.

Two years ago the voters did a lot of worrying over their candidates. This year the candidates are worrying over the voters. There is a plentiful supply to choose from. All have their personal friends. But it's going to take more than the votes of personal friends to do any electing.

An age-old axiom in politics is that there is no fathoming the mass mind. This is the first ground rule necessary to political firing. Treat the people as a unit, and you will be disappointed. An age-old axiom in politics is that there is no fathoming the mass mind. This is the first ground rule necessary to political firing. Treat the people as a unit, and you will be disappointed.

When horse-drawn equipages were popular a balky horse was not an infrequent sight. He pulled the load or he didn't pull it. He pulled it when he was least expected to and didn't pull it when everything depended upon his doing it. He was temperamental as a prize fighter, but without her capacity to entertain.

Jefferson county citizens are balking en masse this year. They don't see any load.

What About Public Welfare?
 There is another angle to this business of holding an election, aside from the fact that there are candidates seeking jobs. It is the public welfare, the right of people who pay taxes to be ably represented. Just now it is the smallest issue of the campaign.

The minority usually are victorious in elections. In other words, six citizens, good men and true, will let three men, not always so good and true, do their voting for them. That means no aspersions on the one who does vote. But the finger of reproach by the distinction is being pointed unwaveringly at the qualified voter, armed with citizenship, privileged to participate in the election, and with receipts in his hip pocket who neglects to cast his ballot and by so doing trades his citizenship for potage.

Does the lack of interest by citizens mean that the usual bi-annual onslaught on the ballot box will flinch this year?

A canvass of a number of Jefferson county localities would indicate it.

If the voters turn out in numbers, which is always a possibility, consider what the apparent reluctance to vote, will they vote because of a sense of their responsibility as citizens, or in fulfillment of a polite obligation, or because of favored candidates? Perhaps.

The man who can look ahead and answer that group question deserves a gold medal. But the medal is safe. Until election day, anyway.

Snaphooting Prophets Passe

Jefferson county is quite a bit larger today than ever before. Not in acres and miles, but in population, industries and business houses and farms and home owners. Twenty years ago any one of six men in the county could say, six months ahead, "Well, So and So will be elected. Such and Such and Blank might just as well save his time." And usually the analysis was correct. There are no prophets this year.

Records of Jefferson county fail to reveal the naturalized and native born citizenship. By naturalized is meant those of other nationalities who become eligible to citizenship; by native born, those entitled by birth and legal residents within the county to citizenship.

It has been proved in other elections that the naturalized citizen makes generous use of his ballot. This is a laudable situation, but the fact that the American born holds aloof from the ballot box is subjects, him to criticism. The effect is that in such a year as this there

ENGINEER'S BODY AWAITING WIRE

C. A. Dittmars May Be Shipped to Mobile

Although no definite word has been received in Port Arthur today, funeral services for C. A. Dittmars, 34, chief engineer on the Texas Company motor tanker Solitaire, will probably be held in Mobile, where he made his home until recently, friends here said today.

Dittmars died in a Mobile hospital at noon Wednesday. He was stricken with an attack of appendicitis aboard the Solitaire out of Jacksonville recently, and was removed from the ship at New Smyrna, Florida, going from there to Mobile for an emergency operation. His condition became critical following a second operation performed when complications developed friends here were advised.

Coming to Port Arthur several months ago, Dittmars made his home at 2123 Eighth street. He had been with the Texas Company for the past eight years, serving as chief engineer on the Solitaire for some months past. Surviving Dittmars are his wife and his father, who were summoned to Mobile early this week and were with him when the end came, and other relatives at Mobile.

Women's Sympathies With Robinson
 Despite the drone of electric fans suspended from the court room ceiling, the air in the court room was stifling. Robinson, though urged by his friends, refused to remove his coat. His aunt, sitting by his side, fanned him with a palm-leaf fan while the prisoner kept his eyes straight ahead. When the case went to the jury, Robinson, plainly worried, consulted with his attorneys. Ned M. Morris led the defense.

The court room was crowded, even to the galleries and windows overlooking the court room, women rising with men for points of vantage. The court room floor back of the enclosure was filled with women and young girls who displayed a keen interest in the proceedings. Plainly their sympathy lay with Robinson. An occasional hushed gasp or exclamation of surprise greeted denunciations of the defendant by District Attorney Sullivan. Otherwise the court was orderly, there being no demonstration except of laughter at some sally by attorneys in their closing remarks.

Judge Wears Blue Shirt
 Youthful Judge Combs, looking not a day over 30, presided wearing a blue shirt with attached collar. He wore a black string bow tie. When court recessed he dispensed with his coat.

That the jury was in difficulties over a misunderstanding of instructions or law was indicated when Judge Combs was summoned. A Texas code was brought to the jury room.

Father Promises Officer Who Arrested His Child's Alleged Annoyer Drubbing

BEAUMONT, Texas, July 17.—County officials were completely mystified by the proceedings in a case tried before Judge C. N. Ellis county court at law here yesterday afternoon. A little 12-year-old girl was brought in court to testify against a middle-aged white man accused of annoying her in a theater here. The child was accompanied by her father.

She stated she knew the man who took her to a theater. At the theater he took her liberties with the girl that the attention of the manager was directed to the incident, the manager testified. He was arrested by a deputy constable, and spent 18 days in the county jail, since he was unable to make bond.

The little girl was the main witness yesterday. With her in the incident in the theater also testified with the result that Judge Ellis fined the man $25.

The unusual part of the incident was the girl's father was in court and apparently on good terms with the man the charge was filed against. Later on leaving the court room he assured the deputy constable that he intended to whip him for making the arrest in the first place, officers said.

JUDGE DYCUS FILES ABSENTEE AFFIDAVIT
 BEAUMONT, Texas, July 17.—Judge and Mrs. A. W. Dycus of Port Arthur stopped in Beaumont early yesterday morning long enough to file an absentee voting affidavit. They are en route to Yellowstone Park. They came to the office at about 7 o'clock. The county clerk's office is not regularly open at that time, but one voter who was leaving town asked that a deputy come to the office at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and the office remained open from that time.

BATTERY SHOP FIRE CAUSES $4,000 LOSS
 BEAUMONT, Texas, July 17.—Fire broke out in a battery shop here yesterday and a loss of about $4,000 was reported by the proprietors. Battery and radio supplies were damaged. It is not known how the fire started.

V. OF A. TO HOLD TAG DAY SOON

In an effort to wipe out a $200 deficit faced by their organization in Port Arthur, officials of the Volunteers of America work in this city will hold a tag sale August 7, it was announced today.

An order giving the Volunteers of America permission to hold the tag sale was signed today by Commissioner H. H. Wiley, acting mayor. Camp Fire Girls in this city will assist the Volunteers with preparations for the tag sale, officials of the organization said, and efforts are being made to enlist the aid of about 30 church women of this city.

The money expected to be raised by the sale of tags will not only wipe out the deficit, but carry the Volunteers' work here over until their annual financial campaign, planned to be waged in Port Arthur during the month of August, according to Volunteer officials.

E. A. Hanchett, organist at the Cameo theater, was called to his home in Dallas today because of the death of his sister there. Hanchett will be away about one week, and his place at the Cameo theater will be filled by Mrs. McGowan, former organist at the People's theater, during his absence.

MARKETS

WALL STREET JOURNAL FINANCIAL REVIEW
 NEW YORK, July 17.—Indications that the irregularly over the last few days was due to technical causes was confirmed by the action of today's market. Heavy selling took place among the industrials in the morning trading, which was concentrated especially in the steel shares. Bethlehem and Republic reached new lows on the movement and steel common was heavily dealt in below par. But persistent professional attempts to extend the decline beyond the limits of the normal reaction were set at naught by the strong underlying demand for stocks.

Irregular tendencies gradually disappeared as the afternoon progressed and the advance was resumed in a number of groups, especially in copper and traction. In the latter group Third Avenue reached a new and took the money.

Officer V. C. Brinsdine who worked on the case said today, he got confessions from four of the employees who, he said, admitted the falsity of their first report, that of taking 21 one dollar bills from the register and leaving a $10 bill.
